On this Sunday before the 2020 Election, the title of the service comes from a performance in April 2019 when Patti Smith and Stewart Copeland (on percussion) joined Choir! Choir! Choir! at Onassis 2019: Democracy is Coming. People have the power!

November 8: A People of Healing - Rev. Laurel Liefert & Worship Associate Chad Escallier

When we are in pain, our first impulse may be to do what we can to escape. But is it possible to break open our broken hearts in a way that opens us to greater compassion? Can we reimagine our vulnerability as a path towards healing our pain?

November 15: The Way of Gratitude - Rev. Laurel Liefert & Worship Associate Janen Wright

This is the 2nd service in our 2020 General Assembly (GA) series. One of Rev. Laurel and Janen's favorite GA workshops was "Get Ready to Transform: Gratitude as a Spiritual Practice" based on the new book by Rev. Dr. Galen Guengerich called The Way of Gratitude: A New Spirituality for Today. After the service please plan to stay for our 2020-2021 Fall Congregational Meeting.

November 22: Medicine that Heals - Rev. Laurel Liefert & Worship Associate Trish Murtha

What if we consider pleasure not as frivolous, but as a reminder of our freedom and power to co-create a better world? When we feel that life is unfair, when we are lonely or sad or scared, perhaps pleasure can be the medicine that heals us, reminding us that it is good to be alive.

November 29: Grief and Healing - Worship Associates Kathy Hartman & Susan Moody

What does grief look like after losing the love of one's life too soon? How does one begin to heal? Many years out from those deaths, Kathy and Susan will reflect on their paths forward.

President's Message

Goodness, this strange year is coming up to a crescendo with the coming election! Sometimes I feel like a taut rope in which an extra twist is being added just to make it tighter.

How can Namaqua be a place to unwind, be centered and real? That's our communal goal in these times.

Some of us need to take in; some of us can give; most of us need to do a little – or a lot – of both.

Sitting on the Board, I'm most aware of our 'administrative stuff'; Pastoral Care and programs are centered in the Committee on Shared Ministries, ably led by Sara Suriani, Brian Jarvis and team. Even so, I hear Kathy Hartman headed over to Elaine's to help move stuff out when her home was under a fire evacuation order – just one of many, many acts of receiving and giving. Sara and Chad Escallier have been our Zoom techs for almost every Sunday service since Zooming started in March, a gift to us – we need to thank them and broaden who can do this; it's not that hard and we're a forgiving audience.

A few more of us have been trained but have poor internet access, so Zooming our Sunday services has been resting with the two of them. We're trying to improve the church building's internet so we could Zoom tech from there, but this is an uphill battle Pete Buchmeier has been sorting through. In the meantime, if you'd be willing to share in Zoom tech'ing on an occasional Sunday, let Sara or Chad know.

Regarding our 'administrative stuff', we're doing well, especially considering the circumstances:

- I'm happy to report Elizabeth Fraser agreed to be our custodian, and is coordinating with our C-Team (Covid-19) Task Force to keep our building clean and safer for occasional use.
- The C-Team's latest policy has opened church use for up to 25 people. But there's overhead which requires a trained leader to prepare, attend the meeting and clean up afterward. So limited building use is possible, but not straightforward. If you want to use the building, all elected leaders have been trained; contact one of us and we'll help.
- Financially, our treasurer Dick Barton reports we ended the 1st church quarter in September almost exactly on budget, both in expenses and income, so that's great. We're figuring out if we have the funds to pay our $17,000 loan payment in February that's a 'stay tuned'.
- Other than needing a faster internet, our facility is doing fine. The porch into the social hall needs painting (and, thanks to a woodpecker's work on the railing, some repair), but with building use light we'll put that off until spring; Pete reports its redwood will be fine.

We have one of our two annual Congregational Meetings coming up on November 15th , after the service. We'll have brief report-outs of our status and plans from Laurel, Janen, Board, Committee on Shared Ministry and the Leadership Development Committee. Then we'll all discuss two questions:

- 1. What is working well for you in the NUUC community?
- 2. How can we build on this to enhance our support and connection as we make our way through the isolation of this pandemic?

See you there (well, on Zoom), building beloved community together,

Doug

Religious Education

When I looked up teachings from the Buddhist tradition for our Meditation and Discussion Group about how to alleviate anxiety and stress during this difficult time I found the most common answer very interesting. First of all, in true Buddhist form, you don't run from the suffering but rather turn toward it. Then you use the tool of compassion — compassion for ourselves and compassion for others, to move from a mindset of pain to a place of power and love. I guess I never quite made the correlation of lovingkindness as being the antidote of despair before. I am finding that it is a powerful help.

In the words of Jack Kornfield, "We understand that genuine happiness and meaning will come through tending to suffering. It is here that we learn true compassion, where we can bring our courageous heart in response. We overcome our own despair by helping others to overcome theirs."

When the Buddha sent his followers out to meditate in the forest at night they did not like it. They came back to the Buddha complaining that the night was full of "evil spirits" which prevented them from meditating. "Evil spirits" translates into modern day language as meaning darkness and scary noises that could possibly be made by wild animals. The Buddha sent his followers back into the forest to meditate with the instruction that if they did their Metta meditations (meditations on lovingkindness) they would not succumb to their fears. Since hearing this story now when I get feeling anxious I picture the darkness and noises all about me and how my actively wishing for myself and others wellness, happiness and safety shines a light that dissipates that darkness. We will get through this together!

RE Matters

A special thank you to those who did all the set up and were able to make it to our Pumpkin Glow this year. Turns out we chose a crazy day but it was a lot of fun. The second our Halloween Ritual ended a wind kicked up and made clean-up very exciting but what great timing!

Minister's Musings

Election Engagement 2020 and Democracy

Danger and uncertainty swirl around us - COVID-19, the fires, the 2020 election. What are we to do? How can we stay calm and centered in the midst of all this? Staying connected with one another reassures us that we are not alone. Namaqua's Pastoral Care Team (pastoralcare@namaquauu.org) is here to coordinate help and support, ranging from housing for those of us who have been evacuated, to food, rides, money, the simple comfort of people who know and care about you. We are in this together.

As we look ahead to the November elections and whatever follows, it is realistic and prudent to consider the possibility that after the election there may be disruption, uncertainty, and even violence. Although we can hope and pray for a free and fair election and respect for the results, this may not be what happens. Without a crystal ball, and without sticking our heads in the sand, how can we prepare for the variety of post-election scenarios? As a Unitarian Universalist congregation in Loveland, CO, we want our leaders and members to be informed, nimble, bold, and useful in the weeks and months to come. This is from the UUA article on "Voting Rights, Election Reform, and Democracy | UU the Vote in 2020."

Our prayer is for democracy to be a spiritual practice of accountability that resists fascism. Rev. Elizabeth Nguyen

The Fifth Principle of Unitarian Universalism calls for the right of conscience and the use of the democratic process within our congregations and in society at large.

Why now? With the increasing control of our government by corporate and special interests, voter suppression, and the alarming rise of authoritarianism, we face many challenges to ensure democracy and a just society. We also have seen a rise in people's movements led by people of color, women, and others impacted by injustice, a rise in activism, and the election of progressive candidates. This is electoral justice.

Many of us have been writing letters to get out the vote and engaged in other pre-election activities. By now I hope all of you reading this will have voted. If not, please do! Your vote is your voice. Be counted.

Gearing up for the most important election of our lifetime, there have been abundant training opportunities and resources to help "We, the People" prepare ourselves to protect the Constitution and our democracy. This includes the UUA website for the grassroots 2020 campaign www.uuthevote.org. If election night does not deliver results, and we wonder "what now?" our focus should be on shared democratic values, rather than individuals, and our actions should be geared to uphold stability and nonviolence.

We have worked hard to create and sustain our community, rooted in our UU values, now more important than ever. As Parker Palmer writes in Healing the Heart of Democracy: The Courage to Create A Politics Worthy of the Human Heart:

Without a community, it is nearly impossible to achieve voice... Without a community, it is nearly impossible to exercise the "power of one" in a way that allows power to multiply... The steady companionship of...kindred spirits can help us find the courage we need to speak and act as citizens. There are many ways to plant and cultivate the seeds of community in our personal and local lives. We must all become gardeners of community if we want democracy to flourish.

May we continue to cultivate the garden of community we call the Namaqua Unitarian Universalist Congregation to help heal democracy and help it to flourish.

From Laurel, With Love

Building Beloved Community by Barbara Fleming

"Love is the spirit of this church and service is its law. This is our great covenant: To dwell together in peace, to seek the truth in love and to help one another."

It may come as a surprise to some UUs just how long this statement has been spoken aloud weekly in our services. It was written by James Vila Blake in 1894 when he was minister of All Souls Unitarian Church in Evanston, Illinois, and adopted by more and more churches around the country because it expresses our core values so eloquently. The Unitarian Universalist Association, formed in 1961, changed "law" to "call."

Among our community:

Vicki and Tom Clark enjoyed a lengthy visit with their son, Jeffrey, in October. Vicki says many hugs were shared. More recently, Tom experienced and recovered from a blood clot that sent him to the ER.

October is a special month in the Liefert household: on the 3rd, their son David was born; on the 4th , Laurel and Francey were married, and on the 5th , Laurel was ordained.

Janet Gillette reported that her first husband, the father of her children, has died in California.

Atulya Johnson is finished with a troublesome lawsuit and living in her parents' home, and she now has two new canine companions.

Elisabeth Fraser and Elaine Axon have had to evacuate from Glade Road due to the Cameron Peak fire.

Kent Robertson has been concerned that his wife, Ginny Weigel, might need to move from her present rehabilitation facility. At this writing the matter remained unresolved but is looking hopeful.

Jennifer Buchmeier's brother has undergone a long-awaited kidney transplant, with the kidney donated by her niece.

Susan Moody is concerned about her son, who is headed to Brazil with his girlfriend. She hopes he will have a wonderful time but will be relieved when he gets home again.

Kathy Hartman volunteers at the food bank; she says that supplies of diapers and feminine products are always running out. If grocery shoppers purchase those items and drop them off at her house, she will deliver them.

We extend our condolences, shared joy and concern for those joys and sorrows shared and those that remain unspoken in our hearts.
